Dear Friends,

In all our acts of worship we seek to do something extraordinary - draw close to God and have a spiritual encounter that transforms our every-day living. No small task! In fact, we know that in the day and age we find ourselves living now it's a considerable challenge. In a previous time, the kind of questions that we encounter about God were not on the agenda in society in the way they are now. Today questions about the reality and nature of God have resulted in a moving away from the church of a previous generation.

Perhaps that's part of the problem, so much of our church life seems to belong to another previous generation? As I ponder how to respond to this issue, and invite you to do the same, I call to mind the way in which the apostle Paul encountered those whose beliefs were very different from his own, and the way he tried to engage them with a glimpse of God as revealed in Jesus - this is Acts 17,16:

While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he was greatly distressed to see that the city was full of idols. So, he reasoned in the synagogue with both Jews and God-fearing Greeks, as well as in the marketplace day by day with those who happened to be there. A group of Epicurean and Stoic philosophers began to debate with him. Some of them asked, "What is this babbling trying to say?" Others remarked, "He seems to be advocating foreign gods." They said this because Paul was preaching the good news about Jesus and the resurrection.

The account of Paul communicating to those who thought he was 'babbling' feels like the situation many a preacher might find themselves in today! Perhaps you feel the same whenever you try to articulate something of your faith? Paul found that by starting where people were and relating to them, he could reveal something of the living, resurrected Jesus. I wonder if that approach might inspire us to find our way of doing the same to the people we meet?

Blessings as you babble to those who will listen to you!
Mark
